Course Proposals

FREN 151 – National Identity in a Transnational Age
GERM 151 – National Identity in a Transnational Age
SPAN 151 – National Identity in a Transnational Age

Marc teaches the German class, Eduardo Garcia teaches Spanish, Svetlana Dembovski teaches the French course. Marc noted that Japanese might be the next step to consider in creating these courses. All of these courses are taught on-campus at Drake.
Marc noted that there are fewer course objectives: those having to do with Ethics have been removed, since those have been the sticking point with Council in the past.
These three courses were unanimously approved.
Leslie asked why school of Ed and Pharmacy students are excluded. Colin and Michael do not remember any discussion of this at the Curriculum meeting. Mahmoud suggested that perhaps the course has restricted enrollment it is because of the challenging nature of the course. Elizabeth said that because this course fulfills an AOI requirement, she doesn’t believe it can be restricted. Colin noted that the Course Proposal form does not include an inquiry about class size/cap: perhaps this restriction is a way of restricting the course size. These courses were tabled pending the clarification of the exclusion/inclusion information.

Members of the council determined that the course has no exclusions. [amended 2/29/12] This course was unanimously approved.

PSY 90/91—Independent Study was approved by Curriculum committee at last meeting: this is a course taught by Olga Lazareva, will be considered by Council at the next meeting after a revised course proposal is submitted.

The meeting adjourned at 4:12 p.m.
