Question 1 ▾

FLAG QUESTION

Countries A, B, and C are WTO members. Each has agreed to a WTO binding of 20% on silk handkerchiefs. A imports roughly one million silk handkerchiefs annually from B at a customs entry valuation of $ 1.00 per unit.

A was prepared to reduce its tariff on all imported handkerchiefs from 20% to 10% until A's trade ministry issued a finding that B has been dumping silk handkerchiefs in A at about 50% of what A has determined should be their price. A has therefore decided to impose countervailing duties on B. A was also through with plans to cut the 20% tariff in half for the handkerchiefs it will continue to import from C.

Based on this set of facts:

- (a) Under the WTO system, is A's imposition of countervailing duties on B?
- (b) If so, what is the appropriate value or dollar amount of the countervailing duty on B?
- (c) Is it permissible or appropriate for A to go ahead with its plan to reduce the tariff on handkerchiefs imported from C?
