The Supreme Court Competition

Each year, outstanding advocates in the Law School compete in the Supreme Court Competition for the honor of presenting final arguments to the Iowa Supreme Court. The problem is based upon a real case, using an actual record that was pending before the Iowa Supreme Court, thus giving competitors a realistic experience.

The competition is open to all second and third year law students and consists of writing a brief and arguing in two preliminary rounds, one on-brief and one off-brief. Each competitor argues individually in the preliminary rounds, with 15 minutes of time allocated to each advocate. The top four advocates based upon scores from the preliminary rounds advance to the final round before the Iowa Supreme Court. The award for the Best Oralist in the final round is then announced at the Supreme Court Celebration Banquet.

2014 Supreme Court Competition Problem

Hershel Farm Co. v. Woodbury Transport Services, Inc.

The issue before the Court is whether an indemnity agreement violates public policy or Minnesota law. In 1987, Hershel Farm Company and Woodbury Transport Services entered into a transportation services agreement. Both parties agreed that Minnesota law would govern any contractual disputes. Under the agreement Woodbury provided transportation services to Hershel Farm. In 2011, an employee of Woodbury allegedly slipped and fell on Hershel Farm's premises when making a delivery and was injured. The employee sued Hershel Farm alleging negligence. Hershel Farm sought indemnification from Woodbury based on an indemnification provision in the parties' agreement. In 2012, Woodbury and Hershel Farm filed motions for summary judgment. Woodbury contends the indemnification agreement is unenforceable under Minnesota law because it does not specifically provide for indemnification for Hershel Farm's own negligence. Even if the language does require Woodbury to indemnify Hershel Farm for their own negligence, Woodbury contends these types of provisions are void as against public policy in Minnesota. Hershel Farm argues the indemnity agreement is enforceable since its provisions are clear.

The District Court granted summary judgment in favor of Hershel Farm holding the indemnification agreement was enforceable under Minnesota law and declined to determine if the contract is against public policy stating that decision is for the courts of Minnesota. Woodbury appealed to the Iowa Supreme Court which granted further review.

Inns of Court

American Inns of Court have been formed throughout the United States for the purpose of promoting and improving trial and appellate advocacy skills, adherence to ethical ideals and professionalism among members. Members, who are limited in number to 65, include judges, senior and new attorneys, and law students who meet regularly throughout the year to participate in demonstrations of forensic techniques, critiques and evaluations, and collegial discussion and dining. Two Inns of Court have been formed in Des Moines, and Drake Law students and faculty are members of each.
