The Supreme Court Competition

Each year, outstanding advocates in the Law School compete in the Supreme Court Competition for the honor of presenting final arguments to the Iowa Supreme Court. The problem is based on a real case, using an actual record that was pending before the Iowa Supreme Court, thus giving competitors a realistic experience.

The competition is open to all second- and third-year law students and consists of writing a brief and arguing in two preliminary rounds, one on-brief and one off-brief. Each competitor argues individually in the preliminary rounds, with 15 minutes of time allocated to each advocate. The top four advocates based upon scores from the preliminary rounds advance to the final round before the Iowa Supreme Court. The award for Best Oralist in the final round is announced at the Supreme Court Celebration Banquet.

2016 Supreme Court Competition Problem

Poe Dameron v. First Order, Inc.

Poe Dameron worked for First Order, Inc., from 1997-2013. After suffering a work-related injury and taking FMLA, Dameron was unable to obtain a heavy-duty work medical release, which was a requirement of his position. Because of this, Dameron was unable to work and was subsequently terminated by First Order.

On September 3, 2014, the Iowa Civil Rights Commission issued a right to sue letter to Dameron. Per Iowa Code § 216.14(4), Dameron had 90 days after the issuance of the right to sue letter to file a claim in court, meaning that he had to file his claim on or before December 2, 2014, in order for the claim to be timely.

On December 2, 2014, Dameron submitted a petition in state court through the electronic filing system (EDMS) and got a “Received Notice” from EDMS that same day. On December 3, 2014, Dameron received a “Rejection Notice” from EDMS because Dameron’s counsel did not sign the petition. Dameron corrected the error and resubmitted the filing that same day. On December 4, 2014, Dameron received an Accepted Notice, which reflected that the notice was accepted on December 3, 2014.

First Order filed a Motion to Dismiss, or in the alternative for Summary Judgment, on all Dameron’s claims under the Iowa Civil Rights Act because the petition was filed outside the 90-day limitation period. Subsequently, Dameron added ADA claims to the petition, and this action was removed to the Southern District of Iowa federal court. Dameron filed a resistance to the Motion to Dismiss, asserting that the petition was timely under the EDMS interim rules.

In order to resolve the issue, the Southern District of Iowa certified several state law questions to the Iowa Supreme Court regarding the EDMS interim rules and their effect on a statute of limitations.
