Preview Days, campus half-day visits and Politics and STEM Days are coming to Drake increases dramatically. Some of these touchpoints with you had a 70% or overview session, make a phone call or show them your lab, our chance to get these students events do in term of yielding students incredibly helpful as we plan and revamp this year's Thank you all for coming to the all-faculty meeting last Friday! We talked a lot about admission raking. I love this time of the year! We are nearing the midpoint of the semester (October 16), It feels like fall has arrived. I saw the first red leaf on a tree, and our backyard already needs

Dean's Note

All of these dates are located A&S Important Dates

Suburban Community College System’s Dean of A&S.

A student wrote in to the Dean about a recent incident that occurred during a lecture in one of his classes. The student was not happy with the professor’s approach to teaching and decided to complain to the Dean about it. The Dean responded by saying that it is important for students to communicate their concerns with faculty members and that the college is committed to providing a safe and respectful learning environment for all.

A&S Form page. New courses Any permanent changes to courses, including new courses (not offered under a Special topics course) should be submitted using the two forms on the A&S Form page. New courses approval by Curriculum Committee and A&S Council before registration begins. Once

Advisor Workshop:

After October 28th, students may only withdraw from a class due to extenuating circumstances. Withdrawing from a class after the 30th week of the semester results in a W being recorded on the student’s transcript. If you see a student who is struggling with their coursework and are considering a recommendation for withdrawal, please reach out to your new dean or A&S advisor for guidance on the best course of action.

Featuring: October 24 at 6:30pm in Sheslow Auditorium. Lecture is by Professor Tim Knepper.

Stalnaker Lecture 2019

About the lecture: What’s important for the future of the arts? First, we need to make sure that the arts are an essential part of our culture. This means supporting the arts through funding and policies. Second, we need to create opportunities for artists to thrive. This can be done through education, training, and mentorship. Third, we need to ensure that the arts are accessible to everyone. This means providing opportunities for people of all ages and backgrounds to engage with the arts. The lecture will focus on practical solutions for faculty to help students transition from high school to college. We recommend reading this book by Lisa M. Nunn entitled “The Comparison Project” which focuses on practical solutions for faculty to help students transition from high school to college.

Attention: Directors of Academic Affairs and Faculty.

We are seeking nominations for new and returning Class Officers to be selected at the A&S Officers meeting. If you are interested in taking advantage of this opportunity, please reply to email by Friday, October 18.

Regalia Program

The Registrar’s Office has opened the regalia order process for the December 2019 Commencement. Regalia Program again this year. Specifically, $350 will be placed on account for current full-time students and $175 will be placed on account for part-time students. Students with current full-time status as of November 1, 2019, will automatically be charged for their regalia. Students with current part-time status as of November 1, 2019, will automatically be charged for their regalia. Students will have the opportunity to purchase academic regalia (robe, hood, and tam) appropriate to discipline through 2019-20. Bachelor and Master degrees will be available for purchase in regalia at the time of diploma pick-up. Students who withdraw from a course before the 30th week of the semester and are registered for the course in which they withdrew as a W will have a new grade and the W will appear on the transcript. If the student remained enrolled. Withdrawing from too many courses can impact ability to

Dropping with a W does not take a full-time student to part-time standing. The transcript will reflect that 12 hours were attempted for a given term, but only 9 hours will be billed for 12 credit hours.

Submit News

College of Arts & Science

A&S Newsletter

September 30, 2019

New Faculty Introductions: Leo Neustadt

Leo Neustadt earned his Ph.D. from the University of California, Los Angeles. His research focuses on the development of urban areas in developing countries, with a particular interest in the role of design and planning in shaping urban form and function. He has also conducted research on the impact of urban development on social equity and economic growth. His work has been published in a number of journals, including Urban Studies and the Journal of Planning Education and Research. He has also presented his research at a number of conferences, including the Annual Conference of the Association of American Geographers.

New Faculty Introductions: Lea Burnham

Lea Burnham earned her Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. Her research focuses on the development of urban areas in developing countries, with a particular interest in the role of design and planning in shaping urban form and function. She has also conducted research on the impact of urban development on social equity and economic growth. Her work has been published in a number of journals, including Urban Studies and the Journal of Planning Education and Research. She has also presented her research at a number of conferences, including the Annual Conference of the Association of American Geographers.

Spotlights

The Comparison Project, a program in comparative philosophy of religion, the study of local-lived spirituality, and the practice of cross-cultural understanding, is a recent addition to the A&S curriculum. The program is co-director by Dr. Tim Knepper and Dr. Lisa M. Nunn. The program’s goal is to provide students with the opportunity to engage in interdisciplinary research and to foster a collaborative environment across departments.

Submit News

College of Arts & Science

A&S Newsletter

September 30, 2019

New Faculty Introductions: Leo Neustadt

Leo Neustadt earned his Ph.D. from the University of California, Los Angeles. His research focuses on the development of urban areas in developing countries, with a particular interest in the role of design and planning in shaping urban form and function. He has also conducted research on the impact of urban development on social equity and economic growth. His work has been published in a number of journals, including Urban Studies and the Journal of Planning Education and Research. He has also presented his research at a number of conferences, including the Annual Conference of the Association of American Geographers.

New Faculty Introductions: Lea Burnham

Lea Burnham earned her Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. Her research focuses on the development of urban areas in developing countries, with a particular interest in the role of design and planning in shaping urban form and function. She has also conducted research on the impact of urban development on social equity and economic growth. Her work has been published in a number of journals, including Urban Studies and the Journal of Planning Education and Research. She has also presented her research at a number of conferences, including the Annual Conference of the Association of American Geographers.

Spotlights

The Comparison Project, a program in comparative philosophy of religion, the study of local-lived spirituality, and the practice of cross-cultural understanding, is a recent addition to the A&S curriculum. The program is co-director by Dr. Tim Knepper and Dr. Lisa M. Nunn. The program’s goal is to provide students with the opportunity to engage in interdisciplinary research and to foster a collaborative environment across departments.

Submit News

College of Arts & Science

A&S Newsletter

September 30, 2019

New Faculty Introductions: Leo Neustadt

Leo Neustadt earned his Ph.D. from the University of California, Los Angeles. His research focuses on the development of urban areas in developing countries, with a particular interest in the role of design and planning in shaping urban form and function. He has also conducted research on the impact of urban development on social equity and economic growth. His work has been published in a number of journals, including Urban Studies and the Journal of Planning Education and Research. He has also presented his research at a number of conferences, including the Annual Conference of the Association of American Geographers.

New Faculty Introductions: Lea Burnham

Lea Burnham earned her Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. Her research focuses on the development of urban areas in developing countries, with a particular interest in the role of design and planning in shaping urban form and function. She has also conducted research on the impact of urban development on social equity and economic growth. Her work has been published in a number of journals, including Urban Studies and the Journal of Planning Education and Research. She has also presented her research at a number of conferences, including the Annual Conference of the Association of American Geographers.

Spotlights

The Comparison Project, a program in comparative philosophy of religion, the study of local-lived spirituality, and the practice of cross-cultural understanding, is a recent addition to the A&S curriculum. The program is co-director by Dr. Tim Knepper and Dr. Lisa M. Nunn. The program’s goal is to provide students with the opportunity to engage in interdisciplinary research and to foster a collaborative environment across departments.